One-day session focused on power management, with emphasis on the Woodward DSLC-2

This one-day webinar is intended to give the user a good understanding of general power management principles, the Woodward DSLC-2, its applications and its parameters / setting and capability. The seminar is intended to give the attendee an opportunity to learn more about the control's features, benefits and implementation.

The session is being offered by Madsen's power management control experts. A Q & A session following the presentation is intended to clarify real-world questions and answers surrounding the DSLC and power management.
